

"Hey Domi, come over real quick. We've got a leak!"

The flood came while we were recording guitars for the new album. The water leak disturbed a flawless plan: 2014 was the year the second album after the band's debut THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE from 2010 should have come out. Instead of recording, months of rebuilding, sweating, swearing and refurnishing the studio lay before us.

SKIP TRACK from Karlsruhe, a city in the south of Germany, have been a rock band since the end of 2006. Made up of Micha and Daniel (guitars), Domi (bass) and Tobi (drums), our focus has always been on vocal harmonies, since all of us are singing. Well, not all of us. After all these years, we still do not dare to put a microphone in front of Tobi.

Anyhow, after three EPs (#1, DELIVERED and HQ WITH LYRICS) and our debut album THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE, even the flood couldn't prevent our latest release THE ENEMIES OF SLEEP, an album about motivational problems, not having the guts to go through with things and, on a side note, the quest for the perfect recipe for "Bratwurstpizza", an obscure Southern German dish based on – very surprising – grilled sausage and pizza. Any hints are welcome.
